

The UC Davis Comprehensive Cancer Center is the only cancer center designated by the National Cancer Institute in the region. One of only 49 in the country to achieve comprehensive designation, UC Davis is recognized for its unique, integrated cancer research programs, innovative biomedical technologies and disparities outreach and education.

Patients at UC Davis Comprehensive Cancer Center have access to leading-edge care, including early-phase clinical trials and personalized treatments based on the unique characteristics of individual tumors. Patients and their families also have access to a full complement of supportive oncology programs which provide emotional and practical support from the time of diagnosis to treatment, recovery and through to survivorship.

UC DAVIS
COMPREHENSIVE CANCER CENTER

The UC Davis Comprehensive Cancer Center delivers leading-edge care to our patients and their families in our adult and pediatric clinics, infusion centers and the Department of Radiation Oncology, all conveniently located under one roof.

We are committed to breaking barriers to beat cancer by helping ease transitions for children and teens undergoing treatment, reducing cancer health disparities in the communities we serve and ensuring patients throughout the region have access to a full range of clinical trials of promising new therapies.

Please keep this brochure as a guide to cancer center parking, clinic locations and services. Additional information is available at the reception desk.
