Philosophy of Care: In the burn community there is a phrase that is commonly used - "the new normal". It speaks to this idea that a burn injury, no matter the size, can completely change the lives of the burn survivor, family, and friends. The road to this "new normal" can seem overwhelming and never ending. Healing does not end the day a survivor leaves the hospital or the day the skin heals. I feel my role is not only to diagnose and treat the skin but help each survivor frame the personal and social complications of illness and recovery. I also work throughout the greater burn community to advocate and support the survivor community. I am humbled and honored to be a nurse practitioner who supports burn survivors through healing and recovery towards "the new normal".
